

Mr. Adam Q. Miller

Planner – Water Resources and Development Planning

City of Phoenix, Water Services Department

USA

---

Mr. Miller has participated in water demand management program development and analysis for nearly 10 years. Miller serves in the Water Resources and Development Planning branch of the Phoenix Water Services Department where he is responsible for administering research and analysis of trends in water demand and wastewater generation. Advancing data collection and management solutions to improve demand forecasting and inform utility management decisions is a key component in Adam's role with the Water Services Department. Mr. Miller holds a degree in economics from the University of Washington.